

Paul Hendon

BAND STORY

"

I wrote songs and played rhythm guitar in a band in the 70s/80s. After a long time (about 20 years) of playing unfinished fragments on my electric guitar I decided that I ought to get an acoustic guitar and start to sing in order to let my ideas come to some kind of completion.

"

LATEST NEWS

Paul Hendon Songs

In the 1970s and 80s I wrote songs and played rhythm guitar in a band that sounded at times like a mixture of The Skids and Ultravox.

After a long time (about 20 years) of playing unfinished fragments on my electric guitar I decided that I ought to get an acoustic guitar and start to sing in order to let my ideas come to some kind of completion.

This has been a great revelation to me - as for the first time since those fingerpicking days when I was fourteen twiddling little bits on my first acoustic (nearly forty years ago) I've found myself able to write and perform complete songs from start to finish. It used to be quite a process - assembling a band - finding a rehearsal hall, having no-one who really wanted to sing, and then the drummer leaves... Now it's simple and immediate.

Some of these songs are autobiographical - most of them are about small things - but they are all things that mean something to me. I hope that you like them

Paul

STATS

Visits	Plays
4,044	856
Streams	Downloads
481	375

Featured Songs

- 1  Put It Away Indie
- 2  Should Have Made Him Put on his coat Acoustic